THE WORK OF THE STATE CON-VENTION. The Democratic State convention has ad journed after three days of labor without parallel in the history of the politics of Tenessec. The most momentous party gathering since 1860, it has passed into history also, as the only one that ever produced serious schism, or anything like defiant opposition. Perhaps this was inevitable. To those who participated in its deliberations it may seem so; but there are many thoughtful men who have watched the proceedings as upon by the APPEAL - harhave been maintained mination made to which even Wilson and Savage might have been willing to yield assent and support. The submission to the recole of whatever proposition for the settlement of the State debt may be agreed upon would have silenced all clamor and satisfied all opposition. This is true and purposes of a party, in the growth and its largest measure of prosperity. Division or schism was a thing to be especially many who are in any sense representative and who cling so tenaciously to views that the vote last year on the fifty and four proposition convinces us are held by very many thousands in every part of the State. The payment of the State debt are well known, not only in every county in the State, but throughout the country. Ever lie credit, even though a sacrifice had to he proposition the legislature might deem fair and reasonable upon agreement with the creditors of the State. We think so still.

This is not a question of trusting or diamout the head and body, and severely burned.

Some of best statesmanship of the State. Some of this was present and much of it was heard, but to no avail so far as compromise was concerned. This is the one blemish to an otherwise good work. The platform is in all other respects one to be proud of. It is strong, yet clear in statement and within a brief compass satisfies the public expectancy on all the leading questions of the day. It indoeses the platform and the nominees of the Cincinnati convention; it declares very positively for the maintenance intact of the public credit, State and Federal; it expresses a willingness on the part of the people to meet the State's creditors in the spirit of generous compromise which they offer; it insists upon increasing the common school facilities for public declares the platform and the nominees of the day in the state of the people to meet the State's creditors in the spirit of generous compromise which they offer; it insists upon increasing the common school facilities for public declares the platform and a compromise which they offer; it insists upon increasing the common school facilities for public declares the platform and the nominees of the day. Harrowing Details of the Frightful Affair-Lists of the Killed and Injured -As Usual, Gross Crimical Carelessness Chargeable with the So-Called Accident.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. Y., August 12.—At midnight a dispatch was sent to Camden for thirty-five stretchers. The news of the accident caused intense excitement here, and when the delayed express arrived about midnight a large crowd had assembled at the depot. When the train arrived there were calls for the excursion-train bands, but, it was understood, they had prudently changed their uniforms. Owing to the excitement prevailing to night but few of the names of the victims can be given. It is learned, however, that a man named Sweeney, from West Philadelphia, died soon after the accident, and that a lady named Smith is expected to die.

The Dead and Wounded Taken to Phil-adelphia. PHILADELPHIA, August 12.-At fifteen PHILADELPHIA, August 12.—At fifteen minutes to two this morning ambulances began to arrive at the hospital in this city, currying those wounded in the accident on the Atlantic City road at May's Landing. All seemed to be either scalded or bruised. Many of the passengers in leaping through the windows of the cars fell into the river. It appears now as though only one had been killed outright and forty-one injured, nearly all belonging to the northwest part of this city. A number supposed to be fatally wounded have not been brought to the city. KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The following is a list of those brought to the hospital here up to five o'clock this morning, with the nature of their injuries:

James Sweeney, of I316 Edgement street,
Philadelphia, killed.

Marie Green, cut and burned about the head, logs and arms; badly scalded, and not expected to live.

Rose Murphy, head and body severely

SOLDIERS' REUNION

Present-Hancock's Note of Regret.

COLUMBUS, August 12.-The third and Columbus, August 12.—The third and last day of the reunion opened with the usual salute of thirty-eight guns and reveille of bugle and drum corps. Finer weather than that of to-day could not have been desired. The grand parade of the veterans of the late war took place to-day. Each regimental organization, with its old battle flags and ensigns, preseded by the attending military companies, and followed by great troops of cavalry, composed the procession, which companies, and followed by great troops of cavalry, composed the procession, which was yer three miles in length. In some few cases but one member of a regiment was in the procession, but that one carried the old fig. It is estimated that fifteen thousand men were in the procession and seventy five housand spectators. The men quartered at Camp Columbus assembled in front of their respective quarters and organized into comrespective quarters and organized into companies and regiments, forming promptly at a quarter to nine o'clock in the moraing, and at nine o'clock moved toward the city. The organizations quartered in the city assembled on Sixth street, the right resting on Broad, and were ready to move at half-past nine. The visiting and resident military formed on Third street, with their right resting Broad, and the carriages containing the Presidental party and other distinguished guests were assembled on Broad, between Fourth and Six h streets. General C. C. Walcott, grand marshal of the day, arranged the following order and route of procession: Marshal and Aids; Barricks band; United S ates troops, Colonel Anderson commanding; Palmer Guards, Captain Ned Brown; Fourteenth regimental band; Fourteenth regiment, Colonel Freeman commanding; Cadet band; Colombus Cadets, Captain Comstock; Governor's Guards, Captain Daly commanding; Ex Soldiers and Sailors' drum corps; Old Abs:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION AND FELLOW CITIZENS—I appear before you for the purpose of correcting a mistake which I find in the papers of this morning, which state that I would not accept the nomination of this body it tendered me. I come to accept the nomination unanimously tendered me by this great convention, and to express my hearty approbation of the noble resolutions which you have adopted. They are truly Democratic in every sense, and I can lay my hand on my heart and say truly that I never accepted a trust from the hands of my party with greater pleasure and with stronger faith in success than I do this one. On account of some dissatisfaction with a portion of your action here, some have withdrawn and have predicted the death, of the Democratic party. During my life the same prediction has been made more than once. Standing here in the presence of this large assemblage of Democrats from every portion of this State, and witnessing the courage and enthusiasm displayed on all sides, it would be difficult to pronounce this a corpse. The Democratic party carried this country through peace and war, to calt to pronounce this a corpse. The Democratic party carried this country through peace and war, and saw it rise from colonies to a Union of great and prosperous States. It administered the government with economy and wisdom, and under it the people were prosperous and happy. Even amid the fire and persecutions of the cruel civil war it still lived; and at the end, though weakened and powerleas, it still lived as a separate political organiza-

M. D. L. Stewart, of Shelby, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the executive committee be requested to recommend in the next call for a State convention to the several counties to elect one delegate for every two hundred votes cast for the Democratic candidate for President at the next November election in 1880, and one for every fraction over one hundred and under two hundred votes, provided that no county shall have less than one delegate.

Colonel Tillman and Major James D. Richardson strongly opposed the adoption of the resolution. Pending the consideration of the resolution, Major J. D. Richardson moved that the convention adjourn sine die, moved that the convention adjourn sine die which motion prevailed. Judgo John V. Wright.

Hon. John V. Wright.

Hon. John V. Wright, of Columbia, was born in M'Nairy county, Tennessee; studied medicine, and, while practicing, evinced much ability as a doctor. He studied law and made a brilliant practice; was three times elected to congress, the first time before he was twenty-five years old; was elected a calonel in a Confederate regiment, and while gallantly leading his men at Belmont, Missouri, had his horse shot from under him and himself wounded; was complimented for gallantry while serving in the Confederate army; was elected to the Confederate congress, without his solicitation and without making a speech, he being with the army. Since the war he has resumed the practice of his profession at Columbia, Tennessee. He has occupied the bench, and is the judicial capacity gave universal satisfaction. As an orator and public debater he is the peer of any man in the whole country. His invincibility on the stump has been recognized and acknowledged. His firm physique and charming conversational powers, together with the magnetic influence of his genial nature, eminently qualify him for the position. Judge Wright is now in the vigor of mature manhood. Hwas a member of the Federal congress before the late war and he, it will be remembered, bad a lively tilt upon one occasion with John Sherman, now secretary of the treasury, in the late war and he, it will be remembered, had a lively tilt upon one occasion with John Sherman, now secretary of the treasury, in NASHVILLE, August 12.—Judge John V. Wright, the Democratic nomines, was serenaded by a band of music at the Maxwell house to night. Great enthusiasm prevailed, and Wright's appearance was greeted with tremendous applause, which lasted several minutes. Judge Wright made an eloquent speech, indorsing every action of the convention. This was the most important contest since the war. Commercial communities did not desire to depreciate just obligations, and there was universal rejoicing ail over the land when the State-credit platform had been adopted. He announced that he would go to Milan to-morrow, where he would speak in joint debate with Hawkins and Edwards.

NASHVILLE. August 12—The rump convention met in the Porter block this morning, and subsequently adjourned to the senate chamber. Chairman Williams said it was not necessary for the

The following executive committee was appointed:

Middle Tennessee.—Walter S. Bransford, W. L. Barthman, of Davidson; D. D. Hollman, of Robertson; Beese K. Henderson, of Rutherford; D. F. Wallace, of Warren.

West Tennessee.—A. M. Lambeth, jr., of Hardeman; B. C. Biedsoe, of Shelby; J. M. Troutt, of Weskier; S. C. Hearns, of Henry.

East Tennessee.—W. H. Huncock, of Polk; Lloyd Bullen, of Greene; S. B. Northrop, of Biedsoe; W. P. Gamples, of Mourue; B. A. Sloan, of Minn.

Mr. Jones, of Rutherford, moved that the convention give three cheers and a tiger for D. L. Snodgrass, the recognized leader of the party. Carried, in the members rising in their seats and waving their hats and cheering vociferously.

Mr. Snodgrass offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That this convention declar: its hearty approval of the determination of Governor Albert.

S. Marks not to accept the nomination for governor upon a pistform in hostility to his people, and inderse the maily statements enunciated in his letter deciting such a nomination.

Resolved, That in the name of that people we tender to him our unqualified thanks, and applaud the action as the noblest of his life—the sacrifice of personal ambilion to the good of his country. Adopted unanimously.

The convention then adjourned.

discriminations.

The State-credit; Democrats nominated John V. Wright, a straigh -out debt-paying Democrat, as candidate for governor.

The repudiationists held a meeting at which seventy delegates were present, and nominated S. F. Wilson as a candidate for governor.
